Healthy scalp

Back to the roots

We're all used to focusing on the health of our facial skin, but considering its proximity, why not the health of our scalp too? Deemed the "Skinification" of hair rituals, scalp care has been a recent but promising consumer trend where we prioritise the health of our scalp just as we do our face.

Many consumers also suffer from various scalp conditions, such as dandruff and dryness, and would look to scalp-targeted products for relief.

Let's imagine future scalp care products that offer consumers a down-to-root solution!

96%

of French women think hair care is as important as skin care

84%

of Americans¹ think their scalp needs the same attention as their skin

82%

of Chinese¹ are ashamed of having dandruff

78%

of Brazilian women experienced scalp itchiness

Unseen green power

Harness nature's healing secrets

Nature is a source of inspiration for many of us, with its mighty displays of power and simultaneous role as a sanctuary. As we expand our understanding of Mother Nature, we also unlock her hidden secrets: natural remedies for the entire body.

The main priority for many consumers is their health, encompassing both physical and mental wellbeing, and the key to achieving this lies in nature's unseen powers.

Let's imagine future green products that offer consumers the healing power of Mother Nature!

Precious oils

The wonders of oils

Liquid beauty secrets

We all have a love for traditions and the connection
it gives us to the past.

For centuries, beauty rituals have celebrated the wonders of botanical oils:
their deep nourishment, enhanced benefits and pleasing sensoriality.

Let's imagine future oils
that offer consumers a timeless experience!

87%*

of Americans using hair oil do it
weekly

46%*

of British women
have used hair
serum /oil

1/3*

of Brazilians
have used pure oil
on their hair
